girls returned at midnight to their homes in machines, without chaperons. Mothers, awake! Your daughters are in deadly peril. Surely you have not seen the dance of to-day! Men are disgusted with it, for they know too well the danger it is for both sexes. It rests with you to stop it. Mothers are such a power that they could stop it at once if each one forbade her daughter to dance it.

This is where the ballot is not necessary. You have the authority. Enforce it. It is much more important than the ballot. There your daughter would give her vote; but if this dance continues she may give her soul.

As Mrs. Marshall, the wife of our Vice-President, intimated, women look like they are dressed more for the "ballet" than the "ballot."

"ballet" than the "ballot."

Suffragettes say that they are looking to our dear old Southland to take the lead, because Southlern men give the women whatever they want. Why do they? Because they respect their women, who in other days had "peace in their faces and peace in their hearts.", Why cannot women see that love without respect means desolation, and old age haunted by the grim company of loneliness and regret?

I noticed that three more women of France had received the Cross of the Legion of Honor, thus recognizing her equality with man, but none of these were suffragettes

We do not give crosses of honor in this country, but upon every good woman's brow shines the star of purity, before which all men involuntarily kneel to do reverence. It is like the Star of Bothlehem, shining so brilliantly that it points the way to Christ. But with the ballot and all the wickedness and corruption that follows in its trail, the star will fall to earth, and woman with it. She will again be the plaything of man, to be used and to be abused.

Will you surrender your exquisite be abused.

Will you surrender your exquisite privileges—man's love, honor and respect—for an imaginary "right"—the ballot?

SHALL WOMEN VOTE? BY NELLIE PARKER HENSON

I just want to tell you a few impressions made upon my mind by wonan's suffrage, and why I am still so supposed to it. Can you mothers listen past a little while? I may be able to belp you to understand this vital question, for to me it is next to religion.

If the mother has instilled good principles there, no woman need feel that it is her conscientious duty to teach man what is right. "Charity begins at home." He knows what is right, but, alas it is woman who oftentimes there is a country delegate, what is men may rule, but I don't believe it will ever happen until then.

Mrs. Belmont says "that women will some day emerge from the mere physical sex facts that now hinder them." Mr. Martin replies "that women have been women a long time, and their physical sex facts are not an invention on which the patent seems about to expire."

As an old lady exclaimed at a suffrage meeting: "Your quarrel ain't with the 'law'; it's with the 'Lord."

the 'law'; it's with the 'Lord.' The Rev. Samuel Schulman, of New York, says "that the trouble to-day is individualism gone mad, and contempt for moral authority." 'Civilization was built upon self-denial, not self-indulgence." To-day women are talking about their rights and forgetting their duties. They believe in such license of thought and action that they have become slaves of their own egotism. He continues: "If the present unbridled individualism continues, it will effect the overthrow of our civilization." Barbarous nations give full reign to their animal natures. We used will effect the overthrow of our civilization." Barbarous nations give full reign to their animal natures. We used to try to conceal ours, but now the cry is, "Back to nature." Some women believe in dressing as near the nude as the law allows, in mating like the birds; that love should be licensed, no matter where it is found, and also believe that nature is the only God.

It seems to me that this is a most inopportune time to ask for the vote, when women are more immodest, lawless and indecent than ever before in the history of this country. I cannot see that the ballot will improve them, when the mere idea of it has gone to their heads like wine. The poor men are so ashamed of our dress, dancing and immodesty that they are trying to legislate against it. But woman is a law unto herself. At our Country Club I was ashamed to see the negro walters looking on at the dance. It was more like the Bowery; more like the Midway, than decent society. The music was like that at a feast of Bacchus—It grew faster and faster, and one selection ended with a derisive, long-drawn "Amen."

After it was over, as usual, the young
